

The In Pista Committee welcomes the approval, passed by the City Council, of the proposal to redefine the boundaries of the Reserve, describing it as a historic step for the future of Fiumicino and the wider area. This decision finally allows the city to look ahead with a strategic and concrete vision. The development project for Leonardo da Vinci Airport aims to establish it as the main hub of the Mediterranean, combining economic growth, job creation, and a significant reduction in environmental impact on residential areas. The airport as an economic and social pillar: the airport is not just an infrastructure, but a defining element of the local community, which over the years has ensured economic stability and dignity for tens of thousands of families.

The airport is an integral part of Fiumicino's history—a true “child” of the city. The approval safeguards the labor market and strengthens the airport's role as the primary economic driver of the area, preventing any risk of employment contraction.
